

The FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections.

The Indiana Telephone Privacy law has given back our privacy and taken away the annoying calls that interrupt our meal times. Before the law was implemented the telemarketers were rude and seemed to want to argue or insult one's intelligence, along with the invasion of our privacy.

Since the law was implemented we have not had one call. What a relief. I would recommend everyone to sign up.

I ask, again, please do nothing to lessen the Indiana Law.
